How a Inflatable Golf Tent Operates:

1. Setup: To begin, an air pump is used to inflate the golf tent, creating a solid and enclosed space.
2. Screen Installation: Inside the tent, a white screen is mounted, which serves as the surface for displaying visuals from the golf simulation software.
3. Swing Analysis: Devices or sensors are attached to the golfer's club or body to measure key swing metrics such as club speed, angle, and impact.
4. Data Processing: The swing data collected by the sensors is transmitted to the golf simulation software. The software then analyzes this data with algorithms to determine the trajectory of the virtual golf ball.
5. Projection: The trajectory of the virtual ball is projected onto the white screen using a projector, creating a visual representation of the simulated golf course for the golfer to see.
6. Interaction: The golfer hits real golf balls towards the screen. The sensors track the impact, and the software calculates and displays the ball's flight and distance based on the swing.
7. Feedback and Analysis: The software provides detailed feedback on the golfer's performance, including ball speed, spin rate, and shot accuracy, aiding in technique improvement.

Please note that while our inflatable tent includes a white screen, it does not come with a projector, golf clubs, or golf simulation software, which must be purchased separately. Golf simulation software is typically designed to work with both the swing analysis equipment and the projector.
